POWERS WILL TREAT PEKING AS DE FACTO GOVERNMENT

Procedure Depends On Approval Of Governments

TUAN SATISFIED

Issue Of Recognition Will Come Up Later

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Peking, Nov. 27.—The foreign legations here, as a result of recent discussions, have decided to consider the present Chinese government as a de facto government unless this procedure is opposed by their home governments.

This method will require no written notification to the Chinese government as to the attitude of the Powers and yet it will permit both parties to carry on and talk matters over informally.

It is understood that the procedure advocated by the Legations is considered entirely satisfactory by Marshal Tuan Chi-jui, who has already announced that his tenure of office as chief executive is only temporary pending the organization of a new government.

Diplomatic circles consider it certain that formal recognition must be again granted to China if a new government is formed and a new constitution adopted.

There is reason to believe, however, that General Feng has definitely resolved to quit and

Educational Conference At Kaifeng Urges Strict Curb On Mission Schools

Drastic Action Demanded Of Peking Government On Claim That Foreign Educators Use Positions For Political And Religious Purposes

Probably the most radical and revolutionary action striking at foreign missionary-educational work in China has just come to light in the reported action of the China Educational Conference which was held in Kaifeng, the capital of Honan Province last October, an account of which appears in this week's issue of the China Weekly Review.

According to the article in the Review the China Educational Conference, which apparently was attended by leading Chinese educators, passed a number of resolutions which are recommended to the Chinese Government for enactment into law. These resolutions charge missionaries with being either, "preachers of religion or they occupy their positions for the purpose of inculcating political ideas; education is not their real aim."

In view of this alleged situation, which the Chinese educators, apparently after an investigation of missionary educational work in China, demand that all mission schools apply to the Government for registration, all school operated by foreigners be placed under the control of an inspector appointed by the local magistrate, pupils from schools, operated by foreigners which are unregistered, are not to be considered on an equal with students from government schools when seeking government positions, and so on.

WANT FEES FIXED

The resolutions also recommend that all teachers in mission schools meet the requirements of the Ministry of Education, that mission schools must collect fees in accordance with Governmental regulations and that these fees must not be higher than that charged by other Chinese schools in the district, that schools which do not register with the Government be closed, that foreigners shall not use their schools for the propagation of religion, and that all foreign schools in China shall within a fixed time be taken over by China.

The resolutions, a translation of which were supplied to the Review by an American educator residing in Central China, are in full as follows:

"After full examination of the whole problem (that of schools organised by foreigners in China) we report on the necessity of the Government's regaining control of

The new American Club will be opened this morning, breakfast being the first meal served. Regular meal service will be carried on as usual today.

Artisans and builders worked most of last night, putting final touches to the more necessary rooms of the new building. The barbershop will be functioning in the new building this morning.

The colonial touch has been carried out throughout the new building. Furniture is of Colonial design, forming a pleasing combination with woodwork and other interior decorations.

Not all rooms are ready for the opening day, the general assembly room still being in the process of construction but all rooms necessary for the needs of the members are ready. The bedrooms are ready.

Many persons inspected the new premises yesterday following the Thanksgiving Services at the Cathedral.

French Commander Is Dismissed For Rebuke To Soviet

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 27.—Rear-Admiral Exelmans, the French Commander-in-Chief in North Africa, has been superseded by Vice-Admiral Jehenne, it is reported, on the ground of his refusing to receive the Soviet Mission en route to Bizerta to take possession of General Wrangel's fleet which General Wrangel handed over to the French Government in part payment for advances made him by France but which the Herriot Government surrendered to the Soviet. Rear-Admiral Exelmans's refusal is said to be due to his opinion that the arrival of the Soviet Mission would intensify the Communist agitation which was being conducted in Tunis with the object of inciting a native insurrection.

London, Nov. 26.—The Clydeside rent war is assuming alarming aspects. Cambuslang and Clydebank are the storm centers. Tenants in both districts are determined to resist all evictions by force. Scouts and bell-ringers have been organised to warn the approach of sheriffs and officers.

The police have been largely reinforced with a view to emergencies. There was one case of tenants evicted being restored to a house late last night. Clydebank factors are meeting to consider plans of wholesale evictions.

VALUABLE SILKS ARE MENACED IN SHANSE RD. FIRE

Three Men Escape By Climbing Down Cloth Rope; One Is Injured

Silk valued at Tls. 84,000 was endangered early yesterday morning when fire broke out in Nos. 22-3 in an alleyway off Shanse Road, the premises of a large silk hong. After a hard battle, firemen of the Central Division were able to confine the flames to two rooms on the upper floor. About Tls. 30,000 worth of silk on the ground floor was [illegible] department and the water damage to this was consequently slight.

The alarm was received at 2:50 a.m. On arrival, the firemen found the upper portion of the premises towards Shanse Road well alight, and the fire was spreading quickly over the whole of the upper floor. After some difficulty on account of the heat, smoke and falling debris, a line was got up the staircase, the head of which was already in flames, and ladders raised from an alleyway at the rear and the fire checked on that side. An additional line was used to protect a matshed on the Shanse Road side of the building.

There were a number of persons in the place at the time of the outbreak. All succeeded in getting out, but three men were forced to escape by means of an improvised rope of cloth hung from a window. One of these men was injured.

A fire occurred in the same premises in November last year, when the damage was considerably greater.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS IS GIVEN BY AMERICANS

Grateful Citizens Of United States Do Annual Homage

BIG ATTENDANCE

Bishop Boaz Principal Speaker At Thanksgiving Service

A grateful people's thanks were expressed at the annual observance of Thanksgiving Day in Shanghai yesterday at the services in the Holy Trinity Cathedral.

Practically the entire American community of Shanghai joined together in the observance. Every seat in the Cathedral was filled. Many stood in the rear. Many more, late comers, were unable to gain admission to the church.

"We Americans may truthfully say that we have some things for which we may thank God," spoke Bishop H. A. Boaz. "Ours is a goodly heritage. The history of America is brief, but brilliant. Our country has been marvellously blessed.

"The three great nations (England, America and China) are friends. They have been friends for many ages. The peace and prosperity of the world depends upon their friendship.

"[illegible] citizens of the Celestial Empire [illegible] to us in great praise because of an ancient civilisation and because of the great possibilities of my country.

"If I were a Britisher, I should thank God for a long and brilliant history. The history of the English people is splendid. I should also thank God for a noble aristocracy and for the sons of that aristocracy, for the sons of the soil, the sons of noble deeds, the sons of literature, the sciences and the arts. England is at the forefront of the nations. She has been criticised for her Imperialism. But that Imperialism has extended her sway for the benefit of mankind.

"America's wealth is unsurpassed. It is so great that it is almost opressive. America has unlimited resources and a geographical position which place her in a position of leadership amongst the nations of the world.

"Every good thing is given by God. God is the giver of all good gifts. The sunlight, the air, our homes, our raiment, our friends, our church—they are all given to us to enjoy.

"My friends, out of the depths of my heart this morning, I thank God for his mercy."

Bishop Boaz's sermon was preceded by music, scriptural readings and reading of the President's proclamation, the latter by Judge Milton D. Purdy.

Americans thrilled at the words of the proclamation:

"The year has been marked by a continuation of peace, whereby our country has entered into a relationship of better understanding with all the other nations of the world. We should give thanks for the power which has been given into our keeping with which we have been able to render these services to the rest of mankind.

"An abundant prosperity has

ARMED ROBBERY RECORD MOUNTS TO HIGH LEVEL

Four More Added To Rapidly Growing List; Gunman Is Caught

All previous records for armed robberies in the Settlement are likely to be exceeded this year if criminals of this class keep up their present pace. The Settlement's previous crime peak during the past ten years came in 1916, when 196 armed robberies were reported. For several years, thereafter, the list was under 100, and last year's police reports listed only 109. That this year's record may be almost double that number is indicated by the increasing frequency of such crimes.

The proprietor of a coal shop at 1004-5 Kungping Road reported to police of the Wayside station that four men entered his shop Wednesday night. There were four employes in the shop at the time. The leader of the intruders demanded the loan of $100. When this was not forthcoming, he made a threaning gesture as though he carried a pistol in the sleeve of his gown and warned the shop employes to maintain silence. Others of the gang went to the till and helped themselves to $39. Then all ran north in Kungping Road Two Steal $230

TWO STEAL $230

Two men armed with pistols entered a rice shop at 669-70 Sinza Road and stole $230, while two other members of their gang remained on watch outside. Police of the Gordon Road station were not notified until an hour after the holdup.

The theft of $148 in cash and valuables from a house at 70 Medhurst Road was reported to police of the Bubbling Well Station. Six men, four of whom were armed with pistols, figured in this raid.

Another armed robbery reported to Bubbling Well police station occurred at a printing establishment at 1051 Hart Road, where $330 was seized by five men, all of whom were armed with pistols. The robbers escaped by fleeing into the country.

A lone robber, armed with a pistol, entered a watch shop at 472 Nanking Road. There were six persons in the shop at the time. The robber produced his pistol, and, scaring the inmates into silence, seized a watch and two chains valued at $214. As the robber left, a shop assistant blew a police whistle and a constable ran up, but the robber

MISSIONARIES STAY BEHIND AS OUTLAWS TAKE JUCHOW

Fears Are Expressed Regarding Their Safety

RANSOM DEMAND

$100,000 And Rifles Asked For Release Of Mr. Anda

(Special Dispatch to THE CHINA PRESS)

Hankow, Nov. 26 (Delayed)—A message received here today reported that the town of Juchow, Honan, had been captured by bandits today.

All of the foreigners at Juchow arrived safely at Kiahsien, with the exception of the Misses Elizabeth Berglund and Ingeborg Nystul, who are remaining at Juchow. Misses Berglund and Nystul are Americans and are attached to the Augustana Synod Mission at Juchow. The message fails to explain why they remained behind when the town was captured and fears have been expressed regarding their their safety.

Information received locally yesterday indicated that the bandits who captured the Reverend Arne Anda, Norwegian missionary, at Sichwan, Honan, are holding him a prisoner in the vicinity of Sichwan. Another missionary telegraphed from Tingsienfu saying that Rev. Anda's captors are demanding 200 rifles and $100,000 in cash for his release.

The Augustana Synod Mission, to which the Misses Berglund and Nystul are attached, has its headquarters at Gustavus Adolphus College, St. Peter, Minnesota. Most of the mission's stations are in the province of Honan, where it operates at Honanfu, Hsuchow, Juchow, Kiahsien, Kikungshan, and Yuchow. At the station at Juchow, in addition to the Misses Berglund and Nystul, there are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Benson, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Forsberg, and Mr. and Mrs. Anton M. Lundeen. Miss Nystul has been engaged in missionary work in China since 1906, being one of the first members of the Augustana Synod Mission to arrive here.

No other missionary organisation maintains representatives at Juchow.

Gobs To Get New Uniforms—Maybe

Reports of proposed changes in the uniform of the American sailor keep drifting into Shanghai. The latest is that Ye Ordinary Gob is soon to be dressed like an admiral, minus, of course, the gold braid. The change is to be radical in that the sailor will discard his baggy, flappy trousers for straights, just like an admiral or a chief petty officer, anyway.

Kathlyn Williams To Seek Mysticism Of India

Mrs. Kathlyn Williams Eyton, known to movie goers as Kathlyn Williams, the first heroine of wild animal thrillers, who has been visiting in Shanghai has departed for India, her destination.

She's going to India to try to absorb some of the mysticism in which she has become greatly interested since her appearance in the animal pictures 10 years ago.

In the Adventures of Kathlyn, those early thrillers, many animals were killed in the sacrifice to art.

But Mrs. Eyton is opposed to killing animals and abhors any cruelty to animals.

Her mission on this trip is to delve into the cults, she said. This is her fourth trip across the Pacific. She is accompanied by Mrs. Milton Sills, wife of a well known move actor, and former actress herself, and Mrs. M. L. Knettle, traveling companion.

Trouble Brews In Kiangsi As Tuli Is Ordered Out

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanchang, Kiangsi, Nov. 22.—The political situation in Kiangsi has taken on a decidedly threatening outlook during the past week. General Fan Ben Ren, the general in charge of the Kiangsi Border Defence forces, has sent Tuli Tsai an ultimatum to the effect that he is to leave Nanchang at a very early date, rumor has it that from forty-eight hours to three days is the limit, and that Fan himself will take charge of affairs.

It is thought that General Fan is in sympathy with Peking and that he also has the Kuangtung general, against whom he has been fighting, on his side. General Fan has all of the Kiangsi soldiers under his command and the only soldiers left in Nanchang are the new recruits and a small detachment of the bodyguard. However the number of these is not small and if without leadership they could cause a deal of mischief in the city and surrounding territory.

Tuli Tsai went to Kiukiang last week for a conference with Wu Pei-fu and upon his return was greeted with this news, of the turning of his general. It is rumored that the Governor's family and household went to Kiukiang with him and that he alone returned to the capital. Today most of the things from the Yamen have been sent out by rail.

The financial situation is the worst it has ever been. Most of the shops and banks are trying desperately to convert the bad money of the governor's issue into anything else. Silver has gone down and there is a hard time ahead in finances.

It is rumored that Tsai has consented to leave peacefully and if he can save his face there will be no trouble. The local Chamber of Commerce, Provincial Assembly and influential gentry are doing their best to arrange things so this may be accomplished.

The only trouble anticipated by the foreign community or Chinese locally is in the event of Tsai's pulling out and leaving some of his dissatisfied or unpaid soldiers behind. However the local people can arrange to buy them off if they want to as this is a very rich community.

In case of looting and trouble the local missions have made arrangements to take care of refugees to the capacity of their several compounds and the Chinese Christians will help in any way possible to assist them.

Work on converting the old mint into a cartridge plant has halted and while the machinery is here on the ground and partly paid for it has not been installed as yet.

Educational Confab Urges Strict Curb On Mission Schools

all educational activities now exercised by foreigners in China. Foreigners in China, in the conduct of their educational work, exhibit many evils, of which the four following must be emphasised:

NOT REGISTERED

"I. In every country Education is a most important inner function of Government. The schools operated by foreigners are not registered with the Government, nor do they receive or observe the Government instructions. This gradually alienates the Government's exclusive right to educate.

"II. Each country has some ruling idea on which it builds its educational fabric. Foreign races by temperament and ideals are different from our people. The education of each country is, or should be, peculiarly fitted to each; thus no other can quite harmonise with our needs. This means that they interfere with the attainment of our educational ideal.

"III. Moreover by the conduct of their peculiar systems they really buy the affections of our people, making them in reality colonists of their countries. Though this may not be the intent, no plan could have been more cunningly laid, for the change is all unconsciously going on. Thus those educated under a Japanese system learn to love Japan. So for England, America, and France. Thus the peculiar national spirit of independence and the student's mind, that should be first for his country, is impaired. Thus the content of the system of education devised by foreigners is apparent. The administrators of the schools are either preachers of religion, or they occupy their positions for the purpose of inculcating political ideas; the educational is not their real aim. As far as method goes they follow their own inclinations and ideas. The curriculum is not in harmony with the Government standards.

NEW LAWS URGED

"IV. For the above reasons necessity presses that the Government should regain its rightful control of Education. Means to this end are as follows:

"1. All schools and educational agencies established by foreigners should report to the Government for registration.

"2. Everything pertaining to the schools should be brought into harmony with National and Provincial regulations before they are permitted to register.

"3. All schools opened by foreigners must come under the control of an inspector appointed by the local Magistrate.

"4. All teachers employed in foreign schools must have the qualifications required by the Ministry of Education.

"5. All foreign schools must collect fees in accordance with the scale set by the Ministry. Such scale of fees must not exceed that of other private schools in the district.

"6. Pupils graduating from an unregistered school shall not be considered on an equality with the graduates of the National schools when seeking Government preferment.

"7. Schools not permitted to register by the Government shall be closed after a certain time, of which due notice shall be given.

"8. Students in the foreign schools shall take care to observe all Festivals. Properties and Manners determined for the regulation of the National schools.

"9. Foreigners should not use their schools or other educational agencies for the propagation of religion.

"10. All foreign schools and educational agencies shall, within a fixed time, be taken over by the Nation.

"11. After the foregoing has become law in operation, no foreigner shall be permitted to establish agencies in the country."

that these persuasions are merely official courtesies.

It is reported that Marshal Tuan intends not to recognise the agreement forced upon the Manchu Emperor and that a new and more equitable agreement will be made with the Maschu House.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen is expected in Tientsin on November 30, after which he will come on to Peking, where he will be consulted regarding the forthcoming reorganisation conferences. It is reported that Dr. Sun will soon afterwards go abroad with the object of persuading the Powers to revise the so-called unequal treaties.

PADDLES SKIFF 1,350 MILES DOWN COAST

Canadian Bound For Rome In 15-Footer Stops In New York

New York, Oct. 9.—A sturdy, young man in dungarees and moccasins, a gray woolen shirt and a shabby felt hat, deftly brought his canoe alongside the Barge office slip at South Ferry yesterday afternoon and presented himself to the immigration authorities and the Coast Guard.

He described himself as George H. G. Smyth, thirty-three years old, unmarried, of Toronto, and said he had just arrived from Sydney, Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, on his way to Rome, Italy, in his canoe.

The canoe is fifteen feet long, with a thirty-two inch beam and a four-inch draft. It weighs fifty-five pounds unloaded. Smyth's equipment consists of a pack sack, two sea bags, a duffle bag, three paddles, an extra sweater and a gallon jug of fresh water.

PADDLED 1,350 MILES

His trip from Sydney to the Barge Office was approximately 1,350 miles. It took forty-two days of paddling, in which Smyth averaged thirty miles in a twelve hour day, sailing, head winds and adverse seas stopping him. He made sixty-four miles one day when he paddled eighteen hours.

Smyth is about 5 feet 8 inches tall, with curly black hair, a tanned face and a lot of power in his shoulders and hands. He uses singles and paddled kneeling. He was stocked up with cod-fish, oatmeal, ham, bacon, beans, rice and dried fruits. He had a compass and nautical charts.

After the immigration authorities had passed him Smyth related his adventures.

"I left Sydney July 29," he said. "I landed at Hen Island, off Mamaroneck, N. Y., last Sunday and arrived here this afternoon. I am making the trip just for adventure. My financial condition is all right.

HAD SWIM EVERY DAY

"I made forty-two stops and originally carried enough food to last me a month and a half. I have had a swim every day. I encountered numerous storms and heavy head seas and I was forced to throw overboard more than 200 pounds of equipment to avoid sinking when the canoe was almost filled with water in a storm off Chance Harbor, New Brunswick, August 26.

"I lightened the canoe and by bailing like hell for about an hour I managed to keep afloat and made Chance Harbor that night.

"The canoe was upset only once on the trip. That was when I tried to ride a heavy surf off Kennebec, Me. I had been paddling all night and was half asleep. I was trying to make a landing about 4:30 in the morning when the canoe was caught by a roller and turned completely over. This was the only accident I had.

DELAYED FOR THREE DAYS

"I was held up at Bartlett's Reef Lightship for three days on account of a storm. The lightship was struck amidships during the storm by a barge.

"I have reported to six different Coast Guard stations en route to New York. The trip has been well worth while, and I never left healthier."

Smyth intends to pack his canoe on a steamship bound for either Southampton or Liverpool. He expects to depart some time next week. Once in England his itinerary takes him down the Thames to Lowestoft, Flight to Dover. From there he intends to cross the Channel to Calais. He will then paddle along the French coast to the Somme Canal, which leads into the River Somme. From the Somme he will head into the Oise, down stream to the town of Pontoise, where he will enter the Seine and push his way along to Paris in his frail craft. From Paris he will follow the Seine to its source in the Cote d'Or.

The next push will be on the Rhone to the Mediterranean Sea to Genoa, up the River Arno to Pisa and Florence, and eventually on the River Tiber to Rome. He expects to arrive at his final destination January 1.

New Supply Of Bonus Blanks Received Here

A new supply of application blanks for the American bonus, cash or insurance, under the adjusted compensation act has been received by Mr. Gardner Crane, commander of the American Legion.

A note or visit to Mr. Crane at 25 Jinkee Road, Rooin 508, the Crane Construction company, will bring a blank form to veterans of the world war.

More than 300 forms have been distributed in Shanghai by the Red Cross and the Legion. The legion has charge of the distribution of the blanks now with the discontinuance of the Red Cross here.

The filled-out blanks are to be sent direct to Washington as noted in the directions and not to Mr. Crane. The Red Cross reported a few instances of completed forms being mailed to the Shanghai office of the Red Cross. This was wrong procedure. The forms were sent on to Washington from here.

Veterans are slow in making application for the bonus, recent advices from the United States indicate. Major General Robert C. Davis, adjutant general of the army, has issued an appeal to the veterans to speed up their applications.

"To date," said General Davis, "there have been received from the 4,500,000 veterans only about 1,300,000 applications for adjusted compensation. It is imperative from the standpoint of economy that those veterans who intend to avail themselves of the benefits conferred by the act should make their applications now. To extend the work to Jan. 1, 1928, the time limit within which the applications may be made, can result only in a material increase in the cost of administration. This is the situation so far as the taxpayer is concerned.

"From the viewpoint of the veteran, it is even more imperative that he should act at once. The War Department is daily receiving cases where veterans who have thought themselves in the best of health have died or been killed by accident without having submitted their applications. Their widows and children, many of them in needy circumstances, receive in such cases, the amount of the adjusted service credit, equal to approximately one-third only of what they would have received in one payment in cash had the veteran made application before death.

"A further reason for prompt application is that the face value of the insurance certificate furnished is dependent upon the age of the veteran at the time of filing his application, the amount decreasing as the cash payments under the act become due on March 1, 1925, and unless the veteran applies in sufficient time in advance of that date to enable his claim to be properly adjudicated and transmitted to the Veterans' Bureau, the payment to him will be delayed."

GUNMAN CAPTURED

One Chinese was taken into custody yesterday by police of the Siuza district after he had thrown a fully loaded revolver into the ditch which runs along Bubbling Well Road outside the Race Course. A Sikh policeman was attracted by the man's suspicious appearance and started to search him. As he did so, however, the suspect ran along Bubbling Well Road, throwing his revolver away as he ran. The Sikh gave chase and caught his man. The revolver was recovered.

Three men, each of whom carried a pistol, were frightened away from a Chinese house off North Soochow Road West of the Thibet Road Bridge Wednesday night when the head of the household adopted the simple expedient of switching off the electric light and plunging the house into darkness. The men had just demanded the keys to a safe in the house, but when the lights were suddenly turned off they became frightened and fled without taking anything.

DRY LAW IN U. S. LEFT 3 MILLION LIQUOR DRINKERS

Wayne Wheeler Says They Get Tenfold Publicity 25,000,000 Had

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Before prohibition there were 25,000,000 regular drinkers, while now there are about 3,000,000 who get ten times as much publicity, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, said in an address tonight before more than 900 Sunday school workers of the State. Mr. Wheeler was one of several speakers at a law enforcement rally conducted in connection with the convention.

The Anti-Saloon League leader bitterly attacked Governor Smith for having signed the repealer of the State Prohibition Enforcement act, cited the benefits which he said have resulted from prohibition legislation and discussed causes and means of remedying non-enforcement of the Volstead act.

"Law enforcement is unsatisfactory in many places like New York and other wet spots," he said. "Not even the ten commandments or the traffic regulations are completely enforced, but red-blooded Americans will never surrender to lawbreakers. The 'drys' are not satisfied with present conditions; the 'wets' are less satisfied.

"Hold-over and new wet hostile officials are hamstringing enforcement. We are weeding them out slowly but surely. The mortality rate of national wet officials is high and is going up. No outstanding candidates for President will declare for the wet program.

"Six million gallons of industrial alcohol and much prescription drug store whisky was drunk last year illegally. Two thousand five hundred new drug stores started and 17,000 doctors took out whisky prescription permits for the first time last year. Fifty-two per cent. of the doctors in New York and Illinois prescribed 54 per cent. of all the whisky consumed in the nation by that route last year. The Cramton bill, which passed the House 275 to 86, will remedy the situation.

"Rum smuggling is still a menace. Rum row is a disgrace to the foreign nations which permit their ships to be used for such a nefarious business. The Coast Guard is coming to the rescue with 120 fast patrol boats, 100 seaplanes, 20 destroyers transferred from the Navy, and 3,800 stalwart new recruits. Rum row will surrender.

"Inadequate penalties and refusal to use the full power of the law cripple enforcement. When judges give $5 and $10 fines to bootleggers as in New York City during the Democratic National Convention, no wonder lawlessness exists.

"Failure to use concurrent power in States like New York, Maryland and Massachusetts assassinates law enforcement. New York is the worst offender because she repealed the enforcement law once enacted. Governor Smith repudiated his obligation to uphold the national Constitution, stabbed orderly government in the back, and invited liquor criminals to nest in New York when he signed the repealer. He now has the temerity to ask the people to endorse that ignominious record by voting for him.

"Hyphenated Americans are undermining the Constitution. In many judicial districts three-fourths of the criminal convictions are aliens or foreign-born. Those who accept the blessings of the country should obey its laws or go back to the country from which they came. Legislation is pending and has passed the House to accomplish this.

"Six million lives have been saved by the decline in the death rate since prohibition. We spend $14,000,000 less each year to relieve drink-made poverty. Over 100,000 fewer are drunk on your streets each year. Alcoholic insanity has declined two-thirds.

"Diverting our former drink bill of billions of dollars to legitimate business has made possible the placing of 15,552,077 automobiles on our roads, giving work to seven million persons; transformed the movies into a billion dollar business; writes monthly $1,000,000,000 worth of new insurance; adds $30,000,000 daily to our savings and gives to the churches a membership equal to a Pentecost daily.

POSSESSING LIQUOR CALLED CRIME

Madison, Wis., Oct. 16.—Possession of intoxicating liquor is a violation of the State prohibition law, whether privately distilled or purchased, the State Supreme Court ruled today in a special decision in a case from Fond du Lac County. The ruling applied, the court said, particularly to persons not holding licenses under the soft drink provision of the prohibition statutes.

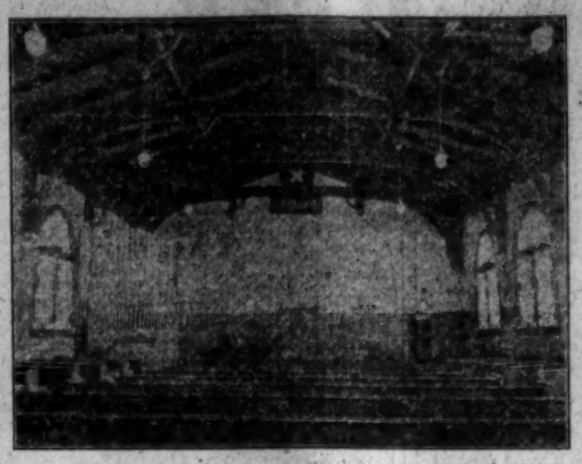
New Adventist Church To Be Dedicated Tomorrow

The exterior and interior of the new Seventh-day Adventist Church at 13 Range Road, which will be formally opened tomorrow afternoon.



Building Is Evidence Of Growth Of Work In China

The Seventh-Day Adventist Church building at 13 Range Road, which has recently been completed, will be dedicated at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Pastor Irwin H. Evans, vice-president of the General Conference for the Far East, who arrived from the United States on the Empress of Australia, will give the dedicatory address.

Tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday evening at the same hour, the secretary of the Far Eastern Division Conference, Pastor C. C. Crisler, will give stereopticon lectures at the church on the history and development of the work of the denomination in different parts of the world. A cordial invitation is extended the public to attend both the dedication service and the illustrated lectures which follow.

While the Seventh-Day Adventist Board is one of the youngest organisations conducting missionary work in China, its first mission station having been opened only a little more than twenty years ago, yet nearly every province has now been entered with some branch of its missionary activities. The institutions at present located in Shanghai include a college, three elementary schools, a publishing house, and a sanitarium, as well as three churches.

The Shanghai Missionary College, 17 Ningkuo Road, at which young men and women are trained for positions of responsibility in various lines of missionary endeavor, has an enrollment of more than two hundred, and practically every province in China is represented in the student body.

The Signs of the Times Publishing House, located at 25 Ningkuo Road, not only issues books and periodicals on educational, medical, and religious subjects, but it also publishes "The Shih Djao Yueh Pao," a monthly magazine in Chinese which has the largest circulation of any periodical, either religious or secular, published in the Orient.

The Shanghai Sanitarium, with offices at 34 Nanking Road, is a well-equipped, up-to-date medical institution for the treatment of disease by nature's own remedies,—electrotherapy, hydrotherapy, massage, diet, etc. Its physicians operated the Red Cross General Hospital for the Chinese Red Cross Society for a number of years. Dr. C. C. Landis, secretary of the medical department for the Far East, is now in America doing research work. Plans are being made to greatly extend this branch of their activities in China in the near future.

The work of the Seventh-Day Adventists has enjoyed continuous growth both in the Orient and throughout the world. At the close of 1912, sixty-eight years after the beginning of the movement, its adherents numbered 98,044. Eleven years later, the membership had grown to 221,874, an average gain per year of 11,257, or nearly 1,000 new members every month. The figures for the first half of 1924 show a further gain of 7,373 members.

The slogan, "The Gospel to All the World in this Generation," expresses the object which has prompted them to send their missionaries into every continent, country, and many of the islands of the sea. They are now conducting work in 119 countries, and their missionaries are using 220 different languages in their work of preaching, teaching, and healing.

For the financing of their extensive missionary enterprises, during 1923, the Adventists gave more than nine and a half million dollars gold in tithes and offerings. This was an average gift from every member throughout the world of $41.45 gold.

Suggestion Is Made To Hold Pan-Pacific Women's Conference In Honolulu

To Consider Factors Which May Influence Th Well-Being Of The Mother And The Qualities Of Her Child

To consider all factors under social control which may influence the well-being of the mother or which may tend to improve or impair the physical, mental and moral qualities of her child, suggestions have been made to hold a Pan-Pacific Women's Conference in Honolulu in 1928 under the auspices of the Pan-Pacific Union.

The leading authorities of the Pacific countries, both men and women, on matters affecting the mothers and their children will come to Honolulu at the invitation of the committee in charge of the congress as delegates and the interested public may attend the sessions or follow the deliberations of the conference through the medium of the press.

The conference will be appropriately divided into sections or divisions for consideration of the more special problems. It is probable that there will be daily sessions of the conference as a whole as well as of the special sections. This will facilitate the consideration of the broader aspects of the problems, as well as bring the various specialists into the close personal contact—which is so essential for the best results when subjects falling in two fields are under consideration. This, and the importance of the social functions, is one of the lessons taught by the highly successful Food Conservation Congress so recently in session.

The following have been suggested as topics of cardinal importance for the consideration of the delegates:

1. A division of Obstetrics. To consider fundamental medical and physiological problems of maternity in the various countries of the Pacific area and to consider what factors may influence the welfare of mother and child during the period of prenatal development and birth.

2. A Division of Nutrition and Child Feeding. To consider the ways in which the newer knowledge of nutrition can be applied to secure better physical development in the childhood of the various Pacific countries.

3. A Division of the Diseases of Infancy and of Childhood and their Prevention and Control.

4. A Division of Maternity and Infantile Statistics. To consider ways and means whereby better statistical data may be secured covering all phases of maternity and childhood, with a view to obtaining better knowledge of the factors influencing mother and child welfare in the various countries of the Pacific.

5. A Division of Social Service Functions of Maternity Hospitals and Similar Institutions. To consider ways and means whereby maternity hospitals and other institutions may have wider influence and perform larger service especially in the poorer districts of cities, with a view not merely to the immediate service rendered, but to obtaining records and statistics which may be of importance in solving problems of child and mother welfare.

6. A Division of Motherhood Education.

7. A division of Child Psychology and Elementary Education.

8. A Division on the Cooperation of Existing Women's organisations in the Cause of Mother and Child Welfare.

FRETFUL BABIES Are Quickly Comforted and Helped By BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Fretfulness in young children is usually due to stomach trouble. The use of soothing syrups fails to correct the trouble and is really harmful. It is not necessary because Baby's Own Tablets will sweeten the stomach, allay the resulting fever and bring natural rest and comfort. Read this American mother's evidence:—

"My little girl, four months old, cried all day long", says Mrs. Oscar Campbell, of No. 141 Chestnut street, Central Falls, R. I., "and was restless at night. She was troubled with indigestion and sour stomach and nothing seemed to help her. Finally a friend recommended Baby's Own Tablets and the very first I gave her made her rest easy. She seldom cries now and is better in every way. I advise all mothers to keep this valuable remedy in the house."

Parents can give Baby's Own Tablets to their little ones with perfect confidence because they are guaranteed absolutely pure and free from harmful drugs. Pleasant to taste and easily administered, the children like them. They quickly reduce fever, regulate the bowels, expel worms, allay teething pains, quiet the nerves and promote health-giving sleep. Your chemist sells them, or post free, $1.50 the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

SHANGHAI WINS FROM SOUTH-EASTERN, 2-0

Local College Is Victor In Game At Nanking Yesterday

(Special to The China Press)

Nanking, Nov. 27.—The Shanghai College football team beat the Southeastern University eleven today by two goals to nil.

This is the second victory for Shanghai College in the Intercollegiate series, both wins being by 2-0 scores. As will be noted from the table given below, this keeps Shanghai in the lead with St. John's and Nanyang, and the East China college championship will most probably be fought out between these three teams. Whether Soochow University will be also a contender depends upon the result of her game today with the strong St. John's eleven, on Soochow's grounds.

Kid Lewis Loses His Title In Bout At Edinburgh With Milligan

(Reuter's Service)

Edinburgh, Nov. 26.—In a contest here for the welterweight championship of Europe Milligan defeated the holder, Kid Lewis, on points.

Milligan, who is a Scotsman only nineteen years of age, proved too strong and dashing for Kid Lewis.

The first ten rounds were fought at a great pace. Then Lewis tired, but he held out for the stipulated twenty rounds.

High-Class Manila Southpaw To Fight Local Boy At Carlton

Pete Alberto is to fight Benny Forral in the main event at the Carlton tonight, scheduled for twelve rounds. Alberto is a very highclass youngster, who has knocked out two of his three opponents in Shanghai, and who has a long and good record of wins via the kayo route in Manila. He has licked Syd Keenan, Faustino de Dios, and even Johnny Hill, though the latter turned the tables in another fight. It should be remembered also that he fought all these boys giving away several pounds, which means something.

In his last fight with Forral here, a couple of weeks ago, Alberto didn't apear to be extending himself. If he had, Benny would probably have gone the way of most of Pete's ring antagonists here and in Manila. It is to be hoped that Alberto will do justice to himself tonight, and that a crowd will be on hand which will appreciate it, as this boy is very clever and deserves watching.

As for Benny Forral, we know this lad is clever, and fully the equal of any of the local bantams except Tingle. He put up a plucky fight against Alberto the first time they met here, and will certainly do so again tonight. He will have to outdo himself, however, to stand up to Alberto for twelve rounds, if Pete extends himself.

It is particularly enjoyable to anticipate tonight's fights after watching the Wills-Firpo and Dempsey-Gibbons fight films. Watching these big business men mauling and hugging each other, or fox-trotting around the ring wrapped in a tight embrace, is a whole lot different from watching a couple of Filipino youngsters like Alberto and Forral putting up a real "box-fight." One of the main differences, incidentally, lies in the fact that people pay hundreds of dollars, making up totals of hundreds of thousands, to see these big fellows in the ring, while these quick, clever, and generally clean-fighting youngsters find it difficult to get a crowd at a few bucks a head to see them give a genuine exhibition of the manly art.

Tonight's fight between Alberto and Forral will be preceded by an eight-round special event between Pete and Hilardo, two youngsters who are trying to specialise in the kayo division of the pugilistic art, and to some extent succeeding. There will also be a six-round contest between Charlie Xavier and Frisco Peralto, and a four-round curtain-raiser between Young Garcia and Romulo.

FAIR HEEL AND TOE WALKING

Editor, The China Press:

Sir:—With the approach of the International Walking Competition, I wish to make a few remarks respecting the competitors as well as those acting as referees.

I wish first to mention, regarding the referees, that prior to the day of the walking race last year, I heard them inquiring as to "What is called fair walking?"

The booklet issued by the Committee of the International Walking Match gives the rule governing fair walking as that of "Heel and Toe Walking." This term, however, is often misleading and furthermore does not appear to be quite clear. I give below a reply to this query quoted from a well known book on the subject. "In walking the strides are steps. In walking the hinder foot, on which the body rests for the time, must not leave the ground until the front foot has touched the ground." It follows, that for the greater part of each stride, one foot only is on the ground, and that for a moment at the completion of each stride both feet are on the ground at the same time. The longer this double contact lasts the more obviously fair is the walking; it is also the judge's main business to see that there is no jumping.

While not wishing to discourage any prospective competitors in their training I cannot refrain from saying that as I went along the course last Sunday, I specially noticed two walkers who were the chief offenders in what is term "Trotting and Lifting," which cannot be called fair walking.

It should be recalled that during the competition last year a certain Japanese competitor being ordered to turn round for this offence refused to obey, but kept on walking.

Enclosing my card, I remain
Yours, etc.,
Observer.

When Dreaded Croup Comes

A thing of dread, that comes in the night without warning. Just a hoarse, metallic cough, a choking, gasping for breath, a threat of suffocation. Oh! the relief of knowing that there is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. See how it clears away the choking phlegm, stops the hoarse cough, and brings rest and sleep to the little sufferer. Sold everywhere.

CHEN'S TROOPS PREPARING TO ATTACK CANTON

Leader Will Remain 'Neutral' With Regard To Affairs In North

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 21.—According to information received in Canton, General Chen Chiung-ming has decided to remain neutral with regard to the political affairs of North and Central China and to devote his attention to the attempt to oust Dr. Sun Yat-sen's party from Canton.

General Chen's three divisions, led by Generals Lin Fu, Hung Chao-lin and Yeh Chu, have been ordered to prepare for an attack on Canton. A committee composed of representatives from Canton, Swatow and elsewhere is assisting him with funds. About $300,000 has recently been handed to his troop commanders and more is being subscribed. The Cantonese are said to be willing to support him on condition that he refrains from siding with any one political faction and concentrates on saving Canton from "Red" influence.

It is stated that the "Red" forces from Canton are massing towards Shektan, while General Chen Chiung-ming's vanguard, as already reported, has reached Shekiung. It is expected here that a battle may soon be fought between two towns.

Koonshan, an important town in Saichiu, Namhoi District, one of the best known silk centres in South China, is now being attacked by the Kuomintang forces under General Li Fook-lam. The home of Mr. Chan Lim-pak, the commander-in-chief of the Merchant Volunteer movement in Kwangtung, is situated in this district. In the first fighting on November 17 the Volunteers are reported to have gained the day and to have killed 16 of the opposing forces, including one officer. General Li Fook-lam has despatched over 2,000 troops to Koonshan, but the Volunteers are still holding out and reinforcements from neighboring towns are rallying to their assistance.

First Snow Of Year Reported At Kuling

(China Press Correspondence)

Kuling, Nov. 22.—The first snow of the season fell yesterday before daybreak unaccompanied by rain. The snow is a small one and about two inches, but it ushered in the cold winter weather. Ice blocks are seen in many places, and the weather is continuing gloomy and windy.

The Post Office here has recently made a number of desirable changes in their schedule. When the large number of summer vacationists left Kuling, the Post Office suddenly reduced daily deliveries from four to one time each day. They have now increased to two deliveries, and we are getting all mails in good time.

The wave of political rumors which is spreading throughout the length and breadth of China is now hitting Kuling also. The Chinese people here are freely talking about Feng Yu-hsiang, Chang Tso-lin, Tuan Chi-jui, Wu Pei-fu, etc.

NORTH KIANGSU GAINS RESPITE FROM BANDITRY

War Period Is Peaceful Time In Haichow And Vicinity

(China Press Correspondence)

Haichow, Kiangsu, Nov. 19.—When the war near Shanghai started, banditry in this part of the country suddenly ceased and what has, for ten years, been the habitat of bandits, all at once was free from their depredations. People could once more go about and transact business and villagers who had long been in the habit of sleeping in the fields instead of in their houses, for fear of bandits, once more were able to sleep in peace and quiet in their own beds. The public roads which have long been dangerous to use either in day or night, became safe again and the spirit of peace seemed to have settled, at last, over North Kiangsu.

Why the sudden cessation of robbery and rapine? This was the question on every lip. Was it because the bandits had all gone south to join in the excitement of war and share in the plunder thereof? Or was it that they were out of ammunition since the soldiers had all gone to war and were no longer near to sell their ammunition to the outlaws? It seemed to be the common opinion, after much discussion, that both of these causes underlay the blissful quiet that overspread the land. Whatever the cause, the last two months have been quieter and more free from disorder of any kind, than any other time during my twenty years residence in North Kiangsu.

General Bei Pao-shan is daily expected to return from the war. He will be very welcome as he has always been a popular and capable official. The foreign community here will also give him an enthusiastic welcome as he has always been partial to foreigners, doing all in his power to protect them and help them along in every way possible.

The war has not touched this locality very severely till recently when the necessity of paying the bills became apparent. Tuchun Chi, he whose victories seem only less expensive than dire defeats, recently sent a wily individual, whose duty it seems to be is to keep close watch on the Bank of China in the Whai Pei Salt Districts and to procure a generous share of all receipts and deposits to help pay expenses incurred in reducing Chekiang to humble submission. It was only a few days ago that forty thousand dollars, belonging to the Chinese Government Salt Revenue, were squeezed from the Bank of China at Tsingkiangpu and sent to Nanking to the Great Warlord there. Tuchun Chi's Official Squeezer is now in Panpu locking horns with the Government Salt Revenue Inspectors there. He wants the Salt Revenue and the Inspectors are determined that he shall not have it.

The Lunghai Railway is progressing in spite of difficulties. Severe damages caused by the summer flood have been fully repaired, the last of the big bridges is finished and the grading is completed. The rails are being rapidly laid from both ends and the work on the many small bridges is being pushed. A locomotive is being put in commission at this end and it is expected that work will be greatly facilitated as the materials will be much more rapidly brought to the railhead which is now many miles out in the country. There has been difficulty in obtaining funds on account of the fear in Holland that funds deposited in the Chinese Banks would be used for war purposes. It is hoped that this difficulty will not prove serious.

A. W. C. Notes

An important business meeting of the Civic Department of the American Women's Club will be held today at 5 p.m. in the Club Rooms, 66 Szechuen Road. Topics for discussion will include arrangements for the Community Xmas Tree. It is hoped that Mr. Piere Henry will arrive from Peking in time to speak upon "International Labor Problems" but owing to the troubled conditions which have prevailed in the North, his scheduled address at this meeting may have to be postponed.

From 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. there will be held in the Club Rooms of the American Women's Club an exhibit of Elizabeth Keith's wood cuts of Japan, China, Korea and the Philippines. This exhibit is being sponsored by the Art Department of the Club and a cordial invitation to extended to all interested to view this exhibit.

The choir gave several selections. Rev. C. M. Drury led the responsive scripture reading. Rev. C. L. Boynton gave prayer. Rev. C. F. McRae gave the benediction.

Mr. J. P. Davis presided in the place of the United States Consul-general, Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham who is on a short holiday leave. A company of the American unit of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps attended in a body.

Last night saw cafes and hotels crowded with merrymakers. It seemed as if all Shanghai dined out last night, although many were the home dinners—turkey, of course, served. Dancing lasted until the usual early morning hours.

WAR AND FLOOD SHOOT PRICES UP IN KALGAN

No Actual Fighting Nearby, But Many Ill Effects Are Felt

(China Press Correspondence)

Kalgan, Nov. 19.—Though there has been no actual fighting in the Kalgan district, the recent civil war, following, as it did, the disastrous flood of the summer, has directly or indirectly considerably impoverished the people. Though the Chinese as a rule recovered themselves remarkably well after the summer's losses, the high prices attendant on the war have been very difficult to bear. Compared to prices in the spring of this year, building materials have increased about 30 percent. The common Chinese flour has increased about 30 percent also, and other foodstuffs about 20 percent more or less. The heightened prices in these last two are owing partly to the insufficiency of transportation facilities, the railway being blocked by military trains and many of the carts having been commandeered, and partly because country farmers have feared to bring their supplies to town. In large districts, of course, the flood in the summer did considerable damage to crops, which has also influenced the abnormal prices.

Immediately after the coup d'etat all communications between Kalgan and Peking were cut off completely. A day or two later, however, the telegraph service was again operating, though everything was censored. The news of the coup was the signal for innumerable rumors to spring up. It was more than a week before the mail began to filter through slowly, and through trains started some time later.

At one time a report was received that three train-loads of newly recruited soldiers, nearly all of whom had been bandits until put into uniform, were to come down from Suiyuan. In view of the trouble at Peking and the possibility of the troops staying at Kalgan, the natives were very alarmed and feared looting. Happily the troops were ordered to return to Suiyuan immediately. Later again, after a city not so far from Kalgan had been looted, the Chinese began to move their valuables and as many as could applied for admission to foreign-owned places, hoping to secure whatever protection could be got. Again however, things calmed down to the normal state.

Perhaps the hardest blow of all caused by the war was when the Chahar Hsing Yeh Bank failed. This bank was backed mainly by the Tutung of Chahar, who resides in Kalgan. The bank had issued an immense number of paper bills of 10, 20, 50, and 100 coppers denominations, the exchange formerly being 380 coppers (paper) per dollar. At the beginning of the war the bank became involved in financial difficulties, but not until just before the coup d'etat did the bank fail. As the amount of notes issued was immense, so also was the distress which followed the bank's failure, the majority being so far unable to get anything at all for the notes. The Tutung has been severely criticised for his share in this business, he being considered responsible.

Why The Conservatives "Scrapped" The Proposed Treaty With Russia

Some Of The "Jokers" Which The Soviet Experts In Verbal Camouflage Had Introduced

By Geo. W. Missemer

The telegram from London several days ago to the effect that the new British government did not intend to place before Parliament the commercial treaty with Soviet Russia that had already been signed does not come as a surprise, for a study of the terms of the treaty shows that the British would have sacrificed well-established principles for benefits which are illusory.

Piecing together from the various Articles the provisions which seem to have been carefully camouflaged by verbiage, it appears that among the outstanding features of the treaty to which the British nation so narrowly avoided being bound, are the following:

On the one hand Great Britain was not in express terms given the privilege of establishing Consulates in Russia, and this would have given Russia at any time the opportunity to say that any Consuls that had been appointed were exercising functions which they had no right to. On the other hand we find that the trade representatives in England of Soviet Russia were to be granted diplomatic status, and as such would have had extraterritorial rights. This would mean that in case a British merchant had any dispute with a Russian Government trade representative—and such disputes would probably have been quite frequent—the British merchant would find that the power of the King's writ had been nullified and that he would have to take his chances with the courts in Russia.

"COMPENSATION"

One of the definite provisions of the proposed treaty as regards British subjects was that they were not to be subject personally to compulsory military service. Their property was not, however, exempted from exactions, requisitions and contributions in kind. It was, of course, provided that "compensation" should be given by the Russian government for any property taken. This, however, was a provision of doubtful value. Those British subjects who had property, during the Russo-Japanese War, in Port Arthur, will remember some incidents of "compensation" by the Czarist government, and there is no indication that the Soviet government would be any more liberal. As an example of Port Arthur, horses which had been imported at an expense of several thousand roubles were requisitioned by the government for military purposes: the "compensation" averaged three percent of the cost price.

Other objectionable points in the proposed treaty had been summarized by the Federation of British Industries as follows:

MOST-FAVORED-NATION TREATMENT

Article 1 purports to give most-favored-nation treatment to British commerce generally and to British goods with regard to prohibitions and restrictions on importation or exportation, Customs duties or charges, transport, warehousing, drawback or excise, &c.

The above provisions are however, modified by an objectionable clause which gives the Soviet Government the right to give preferential treatment to goods coming from any State which was formerly an integral part of the Russian Empire, to any continental border State in Asia, or to any country which may form part of a Customs Union with Soviet Russia. The clause renders British goods liable, therefore, to be penalised at any moment with regard to Customs duties, &c., as compared with goods coming from such States as Poland, Latvia and China. In other words, most-favored-nation treatment would not have been secured by this article.

It is significant that neither in this article nor elsewhere in the Treaty is there to be found the common declaration appearing in most commercial treaties guaranteeing "reciprocal freedom of commerce and navigation."

TRANSIT TRADE

Article 3 purports to secure freedom of transit for British goods, but such freedom only applies to "routes open to transit under the general legislation of the country." This means that at any moment any given route can be closed to British goods. For instance, the import of British goods into Persia, via Batoum and Baku, is entirely at the mercy of the Soviet Government.

BUSINESS RIGHTS

Articles 4 and 5 of the Treaty grant to British subjects and companies treatment equal to that granted to any foreigner, but there is no guarantee that the free conduct of business will be allowed. Indeed, it is definitely laid down that the provisions of Article 4 do not affect the question of determining whether a person or firm should be permitted to carry on business, this matter remaining always subject to the existing regulations on this point in the country where it is proposed to carry on the business. In other words, no definite right to carry on business is secured, and anybody attempting to do so is completely at the mercy of Russian legislation, except in the very unlikely event of some other foreign country obtaining definite privileges with regard to the conduct of business.

DISCRIMINATORY TAXATION

With regard to taxation national treatment is promised, but there is a significant qualification that this is subject to exemption in special cases provided for by the laws in regard to all foreigners. In other words, foreigners are liable to higher taxation than Russian, and in particular there is no clause safeguarding British subjects from discriminatory taxation in regard to revenue from capital and property.

JUSTICE

Free access is given to Courts of Justice, and for the protection of rights through the ordinary legal channels, but it is significant that there is no guarantee against domiciliary visits.

Even if protection were given with regard to this point, the records of Soviet justice are not such as to inspire confidence in the minds of British business men.

PROPERTY RIGHTS

British subjects are guaranteed national treatment. In other words, British subjects are to be treated as Russians are treated by the Soviet Government. No definite right to possession, inviolability, or disposal of property is secured by this article, which merely places British subjects in the same unfortunate and insecure position as Russians.

NAVIGATION

Articles 13 to 14 purport to confer national or most-favored-nation treatment on British shipping, but there is no guarantee against discrimination against British shipping by such means as the grant of premiums on mileage to other foreign nationals or by the limitation of agreements for through rates to certain privileged non-British ships. There is also a dangerous clause which may render bona fide owners of ex-Russian ships acquired by them in accordance with the laws of Great Britain liable to have their ships seized by the Soviet authorities.

Forecasts Increase In Consumption Of Rubber Next Year

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 26.—At a meeting of the Gordon Malaya Rubber Estates today the chairman, Sir Francis Voules, estimated that the world consumption of rubber during 1925 might reach 520,000 tons. In view of the prospective large increase in consumption, Sir Francis Voules expressed the opinion that the compulsory restriction scheme was not elastic enough and suggested that it might be modified so as to enable production to be increased more quickly if the demand substantially improved.

Shantung Coal May Find Market In United States

A Direction In Which Space In Returning Ships Might Be Used To Good Advantage

The standard price of coal of 6,000 caloric force in the United States is eight gold dollars per ton. Since American ships bringing over to China or Japan lumber, flour, kerosene, etc., are in want of return cargo, they will be very glad to carry Shantung coal to their own country at $3.25 gold per ton. Taking the cost of coal at $6.50 Mex., which will be equivalent to, say, $3.25 gold, the laid down cost of Shantung on the Pacific coast will be less than $7.00 gold, leaving a margin of profit of more than one dollar per ton. Supposing that the coal output in Shantung comes up to three million tons per year, Japan will consume one-half of it, or 1,500,000 tons, in view of the gradual decline of her own coal production and consequent rise of the coal market at home. One million tons of the remainder can be shipped to South China and the South Sea Islands, and half a million tons to the Pacific coast of the United States.

A writer in the North China Star believes that the disposal of Shantung coal in the above-mentioned manner will not experience any difficulties. In other words, the operation of the coal-fields in Shantung can be carried out without feeling any uneasiness whatever about finding a market for the output in foreign countries. The only question remaining to be settled is to increase the transportation capacity of the Shantung Railway.

The Railway in question has 1,300 coal cars. Calculating on the basis that four days will be required on an average, transportation power will be 300 cars of 15 tons each. In 1923, something like 1,300,000 tons of coal were handled, of which about 900,000 tons were sold in the interior, and 400,000 tons were shipped out, the above-stated 300 cars having been distributed in the following order:

Mines	Number of Cars Alloted	Number of Cars Can be possibly Used
Tzechuan	120	200
Poshan	100	150
Takunhun	40	60
Fangtze	20	25
Changchiu and other mines	20	65
Total	200	500

Even under the present mining conditions, 500 cars are needed, against which the Company supplies only 300. At the Tzechuan mines they are qualified to produce 3,000 tons per day, but the operation is restrained because they cannot get the car allotment of 120, equivalent to the carrying capacity of 1,700,800 tons, increased.

What is true of the Tzechuan Mine is true of all the coal mines situated along the Shantung Railway, and the development of the industry is hampered to a considerable extent by the insufficient supply of coal cars. If the Railway Company double the track, build the required branch lines, the mines will increase their output, so that the production can be doubled, or even trebled in no time.

There is another matter which needs improvement—the wharf at Tsingtao. The port should be developed into a large coaling harbor so that shipment of coal can be made with greater facility. Now the berth space at the Tsingtao wharf totals 1,472 metres, with no specified mooring places for the ships for bulk cargo and for goods in receptacles. Then, coolies being able to work through only one side of a ship, the maximum amount of work that they can execute is restricted to 2,300 tons per day at the hatch. Under such conditions, it is impossible to attract shipping to the port, no matter how excellent Shantung coal be for bunker purposes and how low the price.

American Vegetable Oil Market Is Optimistic

China Wood Oil Easy; Fair Demand For Sesamum

New York, Oct. 20.—A fairly well distributed inquiry was noted for miscellaneous oils, fats and greases last week, although actual business was again on a conservative scale as a rule, many consumers still being averse to purchasing beyond their immediate or nearby requirements with the approach of the national election. Offerings of many products were light throughout the week, and the market as a whole presented a firm appearance. There was renewed shading of China wood oil but, on the other hand, a further rise occurred in tallow, and the trend of other products of more or less importance was upward.

ADVANCE IN LINSEED OIL

An event of not a little interest was the announcement by crushers of another advance in linseed oil. The strength of this commodity in the face of the largest crop of flaxseed produced in the United States for many years past, the latest government estimate of the yield being 29,200,000 bushels, against 17,429,000 bushels in the previous year and 10,375,000 bushels two years ago, created not a little comment in all branches of the oil trade. Supplies of linseed oil in the hands of producers are unusually small, some manufacturers not being in a position to accept new business in carload lots for prompt or nearby delivery. Another development of interest in oil and grease trade circles was a further material decrease in lard stocks in Chicago for the first half of October, the loss being approximately 22,000,000 pounds. Cottonseed oil declined early in the week, but it recovered later.

Prevailing sentiment concerning the outlook for business in oils, fats and greases continued rather optimistic. There has latterly been some slowing down of general trade in this country, but many are disposed to regard this as merely temporary and as due largely to the pre-election hesitancy which usually exists in a presidential year. Consumption of oils and greases of various kinds is still large in many industries, and a broadening of business in the market here is anticipated in the not distant future.

VEGETABLE OILS

Among the vegetable oils, China wood, as already intimated, was available at further concessions, demand being quieter and competition among sellers somewhat keener. Demand for cocount oil was more active and the market was firmer, sales being reported here and on the Pacific Coast at higher prices. Copra continued firm, with offerings scarce. Importations from all destinations during the eight months ended August, according to official statistics, were more than 27,000,000 pounds smaller than in the same time in the previous fiscal year.

Chinawood oil continued easy, but other vegetable oils were steady or firm and in some cases higher. There was a fair demand for most products. Importations of vegetable oils during the eight months ended with August were valued at $39,403,942, against $49,796,907 in the same time last year.

Chinawood.—The market continued easy owing to a further diminution in demand and freer offerings from some dealers who desired to liquidate. Occasional sales were noted early at 16c. per pound, and at 15⅝c. per pound for November-December arrival, cooperage basis, total transactions being estimated by some at about 2,000 barrels. Late in the week 16c. per pound was the general asking price for spot oil in barrels, but it was possible to shade this figure slightly on a firm bid. Reports in regard to prices at which it was possible to purchase for shipment from Hankow were conflicting. Shanghai exchange continued firm. Importations during the eight months ended with August were 44,746,935 pounds, against 66,461,895 pounds in the same time last year. Quotations prevailing at the close of the week were as follows:—In barrels, spot, 15⅝c. to 16c. per pound; November-December arrival, 15⅝c. per pound; tanks, spot, 15⅜c. per pound; November-December arrival, 15c. per pound.

Coconut.—The tone was firmer here and on the Pacific Coast with consumers showing rather more interest in the situation though no large individual transactions were reported. According to some about 100 tank cars of Ceylon grade and Manila oil have been sold recently on the Pacific Coast at from 9c. to 9⅝c. per pound for October and November - December shipment, f.o.b. Pacific Coast. There were occasional sales here at 9⅝c. to 9¾c per pound in sellers tank cars, prompt and November-December shipment. Some producers on the coast are reported to have sold their output ahead to the close of the year. Offerings from second-hands were light. Importations during the eight months ended with August were 145,203,593 pounds, against 129,247,611 pounds in the same time last year. At the close of the week prevailing quotations were:—Edible spot, barrels, 13c., nominal, per pound; Ceylon grade, tanks, Pacific Coast, 9½c. per pound; Manila, tanks Pacific Coast, 9⅝c. per pound; Ceylon grade spot, barrels, 10⅝c. to 10¾c. per pound; Manila, spot, barrels, 10⅝c. to 10¾c. per pound.

Sesame.—Demand was fair and with offerings light the market was firm at 13¼c. to 13½c. per pound for refined. The first provincial Indian sesame forecast for the crop year shows an acreage of 621,900 acres sown with early sesame in the Burma district of India, an increase of 8,900 acres over the corresponding estimate of last year, and a decrease of 58,114 acres of the total area of 690,014 acres actually sown with early sesame last year. The area destroyed is 42,520 acres.

WORLD COPPER WAR BY 2 U. S. RIVALS LOOMS

Producers' Scramble For Reconstruction Work Due To Split

New York, Oct. 30.—A fight to control the world's copper business, between the Guggenheims on one hand and the Anaconda interests, as represented by the Copper Export Association, on the other, is forecast as a result of plans being made by the Guggenheims to establish active offices on the other side of the Atlantic. The first step will be taken, it was learned yesterday, when the Guggenheim Brothers, who are said to control the largest output of copper in the western hemisphere, open their proposed English office, probably in Manchester.

Unlike other industrial contests, the impending struggle will not find reflection in the price schedules. Already copper prices are so low as to make almost impossible the cut-throat competition that frequently is waged between big corporations. The battle will be, rather, a contest of business generalship, and copper men are watching eagerly to see which of the two organisations will develop the more effective strategy.

MOVE TRACED A YEAR BACK

While the operation of the Dawes plan and the first steps toward the financial rehabilitation of Europe were really the signal for the first move in the crafty game, independent interests in the industry are inclinded to trace the competition back to about a year ago when the Guggenheim interests withdrew from the Copper Export Association, which, up to that time, had represented virtually all the leading copper producing companies in the handling of their foreign business.

The rift in the affairs of the association came at a time when the American Smelting and Refining Company, a Guggenheim property, made representation affecting the policies of the association which did not meet with the approval of the other interests, led by the Anaconda people.

The Guggenheims and others affiliated with them thereupon withdrew from the association and it was freely predicted at the time that their action forecast the collapse of the organisation. Such was not the case, however, and it has continued to function on behalf of corporations which remained members.

HUGE BUSINESS EXPECTED

The European copper business, particularly that of Germany, is expected to develop huge proportions in the next few months, and the American concern which establishes the best connections first is likely to reap the lion's share of the harvest. It is for this reason that the decision of the Guggenheim brothers to open an English office and deal directly on the other side of the Atlantic has attracted so much attention in the industry.

A canvass of the copper industry a fortnight ago revealed that the potential European market for its product is of tremendous size. During the war, especially in Germany, stocks of copper were exhausted and in some cases the governments resorted to the expedient of melting cooking utensils and other manufactured articles in order to obtain copper metal for munitions manufacture.

The rehabilitation program calls for the use of enormous quantities of the red metal. One of the biggest undertakings which is contemplated on the Continent is the electrification of the great railway systems and in this copper will be consumed in vast amount.

INDEPENDENTS MAY BE NEUTRAL

What will be the alignment of the so-called independent copper companies having no connection with either the Guggenheims or the Copper Export Association is a matter of interest to the trade. It is generally believed, however that the large units of the industry in this group will adopt a neutral attitude and will not participate in the conflict.

Manchester virtually has been selected by the Guggenheims for the first of these new foreign offices, for various reasons. In the first place, it was said yesterday, an English office is a virtual necessity in a campaign such as the one contemplated to get control of the European market. Moreover, in Manchester there is a large weekly consumption of wire bars, and by establishing the office there the copper magnates hope to kill two birds with a single stone and gain the strategic advantage which they desire, as well as to be on the ground to get the business which develop there locally.

The Schoolgirl

AT thirteen or fourteen years of age your daughter reaches a state of mental and physical transition. At school she is beginning to study subjects of relative difficulty, in which she must be examined. Her worries looming large and important in her maturing mind, will be magnified by any periodical physical depression.

Many mothers have helped their daughters through these years of great mental and physical activity by giving to them regularly Lydia E. Pinkam's Vegetable Compound. It will tone up the system, give them a new vitality, and energy to combat physical strain, nervousness, and listlessness.

"I am glad to say that I am one who takes your medicine and have found great relief from its use. I always suffered from pains at certain times and was advised by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so for one month and was surprised that all my pains vanished. You are welcome to use this letter to help others."

Piece Goods & Yarn: We regret there is no improvement in the demand or in clearances to report. Our market continues lifeless.

Black Tea: The market has been much livelier during the last week and prices in consequence have firmed up about Tls. 2 for the commonest grades and about Tls. 1 for the better Teas.

Settlements have been on a considerable scale, demand being general from all the markets, but the teas still remaining are poor in all respects, and it is a matter of great difficulty to find any with attractive quality of any kind.

Coal Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Co.'s fortnightly report dated November 27, states:

FREIGHT

The Export market to the United States continues as quiet as ever but there is a marked improvement in the demand for space to Europe principally for cereals:—Northern markets are firm and freight rates are tending upwards which all points to the early resumption of sound trading conditions for which we have all so long been waiting.

Coastwise:—The coasting trade is very quiet and there is no change to report since last writing:—a certain amount of chartering of steamers with coal to Hankow has been done at continually advancing rates owing to the rather unexpected and rapid fall of the water in the Yangtsze.

Newchwang still remains open but is expected to close about the 30th inst.

COAL

Japan Coal:—Since last writing our local market has been fairly busy in connection with negotiations over contracts for supplies for 1925:—we understand the contract for coal required by the Electricity Department of the Shanghai Municipal Council has been settled but negotiations for other important contracts are still proceeding and it will probably be one or two weeks before they are completed.

Fushun Coal:—No change, but shipments from Dalny have lately been interfered with owing to bad weather in the North resulting in a congestion of tonnage.

Fuchung Anthracite:—Owing to the unsettled political situation it has been impossible to obtain supplies from the mines since last September and as far as we can see there is no indication of when shipments can be resumed, the result being that stocks at all points are practically exhausted.

Kaiping Coal:—The traffic situation in the North shows some signs of recovery and it is anticipated that shipments of coal will recommence in the near future.

London Bullion Market

Messrs. Pixley and Abell's weekly circular dated Oct. 22 gives the following survey of the bullion market:

After some moderate fluctuations in the daily quotations, spot silver at 35 7/16d. shows a decline of ¼d., and forward at 35 5/16d. one of 7/16d. since the 15th inst.

Transactions on China account have been the feature of the week, the London price moving as selling or buying orders have been received from this quarter. India is doing little, while the continental inquiry is slack. The New York market also seems to be easier, offerings from there being more in evidence of late. The covering of "bear" accounts and the carrying forward of others, together with some shipments to the East, has led to spot silver being quoted ⅛d. over forward.

About £140,000 was in the market this week, which India has taken, apart from a small amount for the Continent. There is still a good demand from the bazaars for Durban gold. Prices have ranged between 92s. 4d. and 92s. 1d.

INDIAN BAZAARS

The tone of the Silver Market has been steady, and prices, though fluctuating daily, have kept within fairly narrow limits. Under the stimulus of bear covering and some continental inquiry, rises have taken place, but these during the last few days have been checked by sales on China account. Mail advices from India create the impression that the bazaars are not expecting so active a demand in the near future as had been recently felt.

As the price seems to have been considered rather high for continental coinage purchases the market must look to the Far East for its chief support, and, therefore, the immediate prospect does not seem to suggest any marked change in the level of prices. Naturally, falling rates would accentuate the demand by bears for covering commitments. Yesterday there was quoted ⅛ d. discount on forward silver, the first time since June 18 last. The cause of the present difference has been the freedom with which China has offered silver for forward delivery at a time when the main support was derived from bear covering, and other demand for prompt delivery.

Weather Reports

Nov. 26.—The China anticyclone is stationary. A depression is nearing Lake Baikal SE'ward. The typhoon has extended over northern Luzon and the centre is reaching the China Sea West ward, or WNW ward. Regular monsoon along the China coast, very fresh at the Pescadores. Fine and cold weather at most stations in China; snow at Chefoo.

Nov. 27.—Weather cloudy and fine, but cold and moist. The pressure, still above the average, is slowly decreasing. The breeze has veered to NNE. Very thick hoar frost. Dense mist after sunrise.

Nov. 28.—Weather variable and milder because of the Mongolia depression reaching Northern China SE'wards. SE'ly to SW'ly winds North of the Saddles. Regular monsoon in the South. Rough weather around the Paracels because of the typhoon continuing towards the Annam coasts.

The Attack On Missionary Education

FOR the past three or four years it has been the foreign business man who has had his particular cause for worry about the state of China. First it was the Japanese commercial interests in China which suffered from a nation-wide boycott of their merchandise and then the Westerners came in for their share of troubles due to defaulted loans and bills for equipment purchased by the government departments. Then it was treaty violation in the form of illegal taxes making it extremely difficult for certain lines of business to operate outside of the treaty ports.

Up to the present the foreign missionary has escaped molestation. True, he has served his time as a captive of the bandits and in some cases has had his churches and schools looted and burned, but he has not been singled out for adverse treatment as a class. Now it would appear that the foreign missionary is to come in for his share of trouble. This is indicated by a few paragraphs from the annual report of the Secretary of the Christian Literature Society at the annual meeting held in Shanghai this week:—

"The Anti-religious Propaganda.—This began two or three years ago. When it was first launched it received the support of the highly respected President of Peking University, T'sai Yuan-p'ei. It hung fire for a time but it has revived. For example an inset is issued two or three times a week in one of the big dailies in Shanghai. In this form it receives more attention than it would were it sent out independently. The arguments are not very serious, but an attempt is made to discredit religion generally as being unnecessary and a hindrance to progress. It is thus marked by a phase of thought which has long passed away in the West. In particular the Christian religion is a target of attack. The criticism is marked by a carping spirit, or as the Chinese say, 'Blowing on the fur to find a blemish.'

"Hostility to Mission Schools and Colleges.—There are many signs of a growing spirit of hostility to schools and colleges as carried on by the missionary societies. This has been manifest in educational conferences such as were held in Nanking and Hupeh recently. There is a growing fear and suspicion that elementary and middle schools, in particular, are denationalising agencies. It is maintained that as children and youths, during the impressionable years of life, are too subject to, and too much under the influence of the foreign teachers, so they will grow up alienated from their own culture and people. It is further argued that the teaching in these centers of education is defective in many ways. Chinese literature is neglected: the standard of scientific teaching is old and imperfect: the teaching staff is imperfectly qualified and the schools are not fully manned. Further, strong objection is taken to the compulsory teaching of religion and scripture."

And if more conclusive evidence is required, it is provided in abundance by the action of the China Educational Conference held in Kaifeng last October, a report of which appears elsewhere in this issue of the China Press. Just how responsible this meeting in Honan was, from the standpoint of expressing the opinion of China's educational leaders, is not shown, but that it is significant goes without saying. If China had the power to carry these resolutions into effect it would practically mean the end of missionary education in China as a distinctly religious institution, and even though there is no central government in the land capable of enacting these resolutions into law or enforcing them if enacted, they are nevertheless of significance and show the tendency of the day in China.

Although regretting this attack upon their work and enterprise, there is some satisfaction to be gained from the standpoint of the missionary in the fact that China has begun to realise the importance of her own native national development in educational work as well as in other lines of endeavor and shows further that missionary educational work is really making headway, otherwise there would be no opposition. We suppose it is necessary for China to pass through this stage of anti-foreignism in her development if she is ever to become a nation, but the danger rests in the possibility that she may go too far and bring a reaction which might be very detrimental to China. What we mean by this is that modern education was brought to China by the foreign missionary and today, owing to the unsettled political conditions in the land, the mission schools are conducting most of the responsible educational work in the country. If China should destroy or impair these institutions before her own are developed, the loss would be nothing short of disastrous to the development of modern education in the Republic.

The charge that China is being denationalised by missionary education is disproved by the fact that most of the Chinese educators who are taking the lead in the attack on the missionaries in the name of "nationalism" are themselves graduates of mission institutions.

Dr. Nansen's Polar Venture

MANKIND may be said to have mastered the elements as nearly as possible. On land, on water and under the water, man has achieved supremacy which would have thrilled the heart of Jules Verne were he alive today. Death and disaster, so far from discouraging others, have but served to hurry the footsteps of daring ones into the realm of adventure. Thus, notwithstanding the fate of Captain Scott within sight of his goal and the more recent tragedy in the attempt to scale the peak of Mount Everest, a telegram from Christiania published today tells us that Dr. Nansen has agreed to participate in the forthcoming expedition to the North Pole on a Zeppelin equipped with landing apparatus, and plans have been drawn up to that end.

The unknown perils to which Dr. Nansen and his companions will be exposing themselves in the enterprise they have undertaken need not be over-emphasised. The greatest obstacle to the use of the dirigible, even in normal circumstances such as commercial transportation, is the force of the wind, blowing head-on or against the side of the hull or balloon. In the former case, the airship is sometimes brought to a standstill in spite of her engine power, or is so retarded that her speed falls to less than that of an ocean liner. If a strong wind is blowing across the course marked out for her she will be carried many miles away from it, perhaps into dangerous fog banks, as was the experience of ZR-3 on her recent voyage to the Atlantic coast. On the Pacific coast, while heading north, the Shenandoah ran into violent storms that strained every part of her fabric. The wind blew with gale force and a deluge of rain descended. Her engines groaned in the fight with the elements, and at times she made no headway at all. At sea she was wrapped in the same kind of fog that piled the destroyers up on the California coast in the greatest disaster the United States Navy has ever known, Samoa, perhaps, excepted. There were anxious moments on board the Shenandoah, both on the voyage north and when she turned south. That she survived the ordeal was a proof of the staunchness of her construction; that she was brought through storm after storm may be set down as a striking success in navigation of the air.

"At the present time," says Lieutenant Joseph B. Anderson, of the United States Navy, in an article in the October United States Naval Institute Proceedings, "the rigid airship is, of all aircraft, with the exception, of course, of the free balloon, by far the most dependent upon weather conditions. Lieutenant Anderson gives several instances of 'close calls' for airships in the Southern States, where thunderstorms with furious wind and heavy rain sometimes burst with scant warning. He urges that a competent meteorologist be always on board. He recommends the issue of forecasts every six hours. They could be picked up by radio. Maps may be quickly made from them. The meteorologist who is familiar with cloud forms should never be left behind. His value in the Summer months, whom storm conditions interfere with radio transmission, is not to be calculated. Lieutenant Anderson's article is full of warnings to air pilots. One gets the impression that on halcyon days the rigid dirigible is as safe as a church, but she may be the sport of the elements when a great storm unexpectedly rises. In the best of weather the ship should have plenty of "air room," because after all she is an unwieldy craft to handle among the mountains and near forests of sky-scrapers.

If these leviathans of the air suffer such grave disabilities in the best of weather, how much more seriously handicapped they must be in the more or less uncharted route to the North Pole? Of men like Nansen, it may be said without fear of exaggeration that they scorn death because the spirit of adventure courses through their veins. One stands almost in awe in contemplation of these men.

Children Should be Fair to Their Self-Sacrificing Parents

At times you may regret that you were not born to a higher station in life.

You have a sort of resentment, perhaps, that you were not the child of luxury, and that other children had more in a higher walk in society.

This is unfair and unjust to your parents who do not deserve it.

They were not to blame that their parents could not give them what they would have liked.

You know of many sacrifices which your parents have made to give you things they could ill afford. If they failed to meet your expectations in the choice of luxuries, they did give you, it was because you were clamoring for something beyond their means.

You know they denied themselves pleasures that you might have them.

You know that they bought clothes for you when they needed them more.

You know that you have had advantages that they, themselves could not get or enjoy and yet you can censure them for not being your equal in knowledge or moving in the social circle that you desire.

How very unfair you are to your self-sacrificing parents who have made it possible for you to be all that you are today.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

CHINA'S REACHING AFTER PERMANENT ORDER

(New Haven, Conn., Journal-Courier)

It is impossible to describe the present situation in China in the sense that one may then know with which side to sympathise. Peking has been growing weaker in the past two years until as a political factor it is practically negligible. The provinces refuse to remit the traditional revenues with which to support the central government. Nevertheless there is a framework there and it has of late months been headed as premier by Dr. W. W. Yen, a foreign educated Chinese who enjoys the fullest respect of all. These foremost Chinese, even those with foreign training, differ in personal merit; Yen is one of the trustworthy type.

But one is confused when he turns to the generals; he is thrown back on the principle known to the best friends of the Chinese, that one must not expect too much of any of them in modern relationships. They simply have not the background; they are inevitably under the pull and drag of old native traditions. This fact leads to remarkable surprises. Here is Chang Tso-lin, who has long merited his ill fame of being the last word in old fashioned brutal mandarinate. Yet the old fellow has really managed Manchuria very well. He has kept order in his vigorous way and the foreign business men prefer him to some softer rulers supposed to be under refining influences. Wu Pei-fu, who controls Peking at present, and who has been made much of by foreigners, is deep in the present contest—victory will strengthen his faction, yet there is little to show it will definitely improve national conditions. Dr. Sun has lost much of the confidence he once enjoyed, so hit-or-miss his alliances, together with a new distrust in some quarters of his integrity. And even Gen. Feng, of the Wu Pei-fu faction, who has been unwisely exploited as a second Cromwell for religious devotion, can hardly carry the burden of his notoriety—he is, after all, a Chinese with Chinese ideas of war and many matters. The foreign friends who promoted this interesting enthusiast are hopeful no greater responsibilities will fall upon him lest he sadly disappoint.

In the meantime, while defeat or success of individuals in the present bloody business is without significance, each chapter of inanity, waste, suffering must cumulate to impress the native mind. A very sensible people, the Chinese. In time they will end it. Some general will bribe another or poison him, some regiment will desert, some influential foreigner will impress the Chinese with his arguments for peace; some delegation of native business men in silks and furs with ingratiating self-shaking of hands will find the men of blood in a mood to listen and the war of Shanghai at least will be over.

It is likely enough there will be another and more, but meanwhile somewhere is growing up a Chinese youth who has it under his shock of black hair and behind inscrutable eyes to give his native land government and peace where now it is but a habitation and a name. Not that it makes much immediate difference to the population, which apart from the zone of trouble is not especially concerned with the "war," but it does mean much for China. Order is heaven's first law. China needs order. The other things of this remarkable nation are straining at the leash waiting for order.

A MUNICIPAL QUESTION FROM CHAPEI

Editor, The China Press:

Sir:—As a constant reader of your paper, I ask your favor to indulge me with some space in your valuable columns for the following question:

What is the basis on which most of the water works companies of the great cities in the world collect their fees for the supply of water to the private families and public institutions, whether on the basis of the rent of the house, or on that of the number of rooms, in spite of their size?

I am a resident in the Chapei district, and recently all the residents in this locality have been notified by the newly reorganised water works company (now the company has been taken charge of by the so-called merchants instead of by the officials) that, beginning with the first of November, the fees for water supply will be collected on the basis of houses; that is, every Chinese house which consists of one upstairs room and one downstairs room, no matter whether the house is an old one or a new one, or whether the house is rented at eight, or ten, or twenty, or thirty dollars a month, has to pay a monthly fee of $1.50 for the use of the water supplied by the company. In addition, every wing that attaches to the house or such rooms as are built over the lane are required to pay an additional sum proportionate to the above-mentioned basis.

I shall be greatly indebted to you or any of your readers who would be so kind as to enlighten me upon this subject.

"PARISIAN MOOD."

Editor, The China Press:

Sir.— I read in your correspondence column the letter of Mr. Tsu who writes: "We the students of China"—"We, Chinese"—"spirit of Universal Altruism"—"Universal Concord"—"To give is more blessed than to take"—etc., and that a lady, a "foreign lady," a "seeming lady," who refused to contribute "freely" some money to the "sufferings" of Chinese, was in a "Parisian mood."

I am not a student nor am I intelligent and interesting as Mr. Tsu to understand his expression: "Parisian Mood."

Will he kindly explain its meaning, its origin and receive here my thanks for his kindness to the Parisians?

Causette.

Shanghai Nov. 27, 1924.

THE FOREIGN LADY AND TAG DAY

Editor, The China Press:

Sir: With reference to the letter under the heading "The Foreign Lady and Tag Day," published in your correspondence column today, I should think that the rebuke D. O. Tsu received in the two instances he alluded to is most deserving.

I am a student, and I also participated in the solicitation of contributions on Tag Day. But I must point out to D. O. Tsu that it had been suggested, although not formally passed, in the Students' Association of Shanghai, that we solicit only from Chinese and not foreigners. If our foreign friends who are generous enough to give their money, of course their contribution we would gladly accept, and thank them for their timely aid; but if they are unwilling, we would not accept a cent from them, as remarked by the lady referred to in today's correspondence, because we do not depend upon the foreign community for the entire amount of money to be accumulated, as the population in Shanghai is largely made up of Chinese, although I know that considerable assistance has been rendered by foreigners on past occasions.

The reason for this suggestion brought out in the meeting of the Shanghai Students' Association needs here be stated, because it may blindly be misunderstood and mis-construed in the way of anti-foreignism. The Chekiang and Kiangsu War was a Chinese war, and the famine, pestilence, lack of clothing and shelter or whatever unfortunate consequences might be, are also Chinese, and Chinese alone are held answerable. We do not expect foreigners who had nothing to do with the war to share the misfortune occasioned by it.

And so I say the rebuke which D. O. Tsu received was most deserving, because he ought not to have approached to them to ask for contributions. And I pay no heed to the nonsense the man and lady have spoken. They are real nonsense, most ridiculous nonsense that have ever come to my knowledge. The man who said "To start a new war again?" was evidently dreaming that morning. The lady who remarked that all Chinese are mean and debased is she herself mean and debased, and spoke without thinking as though she lacks "sense" in her brain, which every normal being has.

The New Law Of Spirit

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

An anonymous correspondent in Chicago writes to me about my reply to a lady who had been troubled by supposed visits from her dead mother, which ceased after she had recovered her health.

"How queer," says my correspondent "that the woman should come to you about spirits! You are a scientist of the old school, but what do you know about the new school? The greatest scientist who ever lived did have abundant proof of the existence of spirits, not after the disgusting rules of the spiritualists who mix their isms with the old, worn out Christian teaching.

The law of spirits is a new law absolutely, not yet published to the world, and known by about twelve people on earth, originally taught by the scientist I mention, deceased about five years ago.

"Of course the woman saw her mother's spirit. The reason one sees better when ill is that all illness excites, causing the magnetic currents of the body to flow faster, thus cleansing the brain cells, and making perception more acute. All powerful psychics have ill health. No real seer is ever strong in body," and so on.

One can hardly help remarking the curious coincidence that just as it was said when Einsteinism was first proclaimed that only twelve men in the world could understand it, so now the announcement of this "absolutely new law spirits" is accompanied by the assurance that it is known to "only about twelve people on earth." There must be some magic quality about that number twelve!

Says my unknown correspondent, the reason why people see spirits better when ill is because the illness excites and cleanses the brain cells.

Then, I suppose the ophidians of alcoholism must be accepted for real snakes because they are revealed by the "excited" brain cells of the dipsomaniacs! It is true that alcohol has always been recognised as a cleansing agent but its effects on the action of the brain have been held by poor deluded "scientists of the old school" to be rather confusing than clarifying.

Since my correspondent repudiates the doctrines and doings of spiritualists as heartily as I do I suppose I am estopped from remarking that the "mediums" encountered at seances are usually virile, athletic persons rather than languishing invalids. But it seems that in the new school of the favored "twelve" ill health is the eye-opener for, spiritual vision. Unfortunately however, "materialistic" doctors have for a long time been accumulating thoroughly verified facts about the visions and delusions of sick persons, and every sick-room nurse is perforce acquainted with them. I was once devoured by a most realistic dog while sick. My "cleansed" brain cells even enabled me to smell his hot breath. But no marks of his teeth were ever found!

It would be a waste of time to treat seriously such assertions as that ill-health stimulates the brain cells and thus promotes the ability to see spirits were it not for the fact that these assertions and others like them are seriously accepted by thousands without even an attempt at critical judgment. Paint MYSTERY on your banner and you will have crowds of dupes a your heels.

Illness, says the disciple of the "greatest scientist who ever lived," causes the "magnetic currents of the body" to flow faster. But did the great "scientist" leave any reports of his (or her) investigations on the law and operation of these strange currents which grow stronger as their foundation becomes weaker?

Were such investigation ever undertaken, or ever even thought of as being desirable or necessary? Surely, no! Such a proceeding would be contrary to the very nature of this kind of "science." But happily for the inventors of "the law of spirits," the vocabulary of real science contains two words of power—magnetism and electricity—which they can borrow to lend plausibility to their imaginings. Real science has only begun its investigation of these subjects as yet, and the most advanced investigator of them is more than willing to confess the imperfection of his knowledge; how, then, can anybody suppose that persons who hardly know more about magnetism and electricity than the names, (while the bent of their minds is such that exact knowledge rolls off them like rain off a duck's back), could possibly teach mankind a new and greater wisdom based on a theory of revelatory "magnetic currents" in the brain cells, and of "spirits" raised from the dead by the wand of disease!

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

THE GYPSIES' PROGRESS

By hill and dale the gypsy band
Is motoring across the land,
And leaving work to others;
The chieftains still are tanned and tall;
They wander on from Spring till Fall,
With fortunes being told by all
The old and wrinkled mothers.

Free from restraints that we must learn,
They wander, as the seasons turn,
By winding brooks and rivers;
Their horses have been turned away;
Horse trading long since ceased to pay,
And so the gypsy chiefs today
Are busy trading flivvers.

By hill and dale they wander down,
To camp beyond the sleepy town,
And light their smoky fires;
Full many a filling place they pass,
And now and then a gypsy lass
May trade a kiss or two for gas
Or air leaky tires.

Thus changes come with changing years;
Last season's custom disappears,
In spite of tears and sighing;
From ancient ways we turn to new;
What horses once did motors do,
And in another year or two
The gypsies may be flying.

DRESS

Vigorous Color Combinations Include Blue and Purple as Well as Yellow and Red

About the time that we Americans took part in the war against Spain there prevailed a very decided dislike of the combination of red and yellow. It was our firm belief that the two colors were especially inharmonious in combination, especially on the flag of Spain or on any bit of fabric or other handiwork that had come from Spain. We would no sooner have combined the two colors in our frocks or hats than we would have mingled purple and green, a combination that was mingled successfully—we were told—only by the gentle violet.

We have changed many of our ideas concerning the harmony of colors. And we are no longer averse to certain shades of red and yellow—especially when they emanate from dear old Spain. The shops show Spanish shawls of various sorts, but few more beautiful than those of yellow with gorgeous red roses embroidered on them. Following the color scheme of these yellow and rose shawls certain dressmakers have been making yellow evening gowns, trimmed with a rose or two.

The sketch shows a gown from Lenief that combines yellow, gold and reds in a little different manner. The coat effect, which is made like a man's cutaway coat, is of claret-colored crepe, embroidered in scarlet, yellow and gold. It is made over a full slip of cloth of gold, and a yellow rose is placed at the side, while a scarlet fan with claret-colored painted handle is carried with the gown.

There are interesting combinations of blue and rose this season. Callot combines a sky blue with orchid, and one of the other French dressmakers of note uses pervenche, or periwinkle blue, with mauve. A deep ecclesiastical purple is combined with a deep rose—as if cardinals and bishops had met in some pompous churchly procession.

The important thing in these new color schemes seems to be to get away from that which is obviously "pretty."

Lenief evening gown shows interesting color scheme. Coat effect of claret-colored crepe embroidered in bright red, yellow and gold, made over full slip of cloth of gold. Yellow rose at the side and bright red fan with claret-painted handle.

ANOTHER USE FOR FANS!

Fans have for years been looked on as one of the greatest appurtenances of the coquette. Of course, they were originated in tropical countries to cool the air and keep insects away. But even in very early days they were doubtless recognised as a desirable accessory of the pretty woman's costume.

But in the time of Henry VIII the huge fans which gentlewomen carried were used for another purpose. That was a time of severe discipline toward children. Grown daughters had to stand in the presence of their mothers unless the mothers took pity and allowed them to kneel on cushions for a respite. And these same mothers used their large fans—with handles sometimes half a yard long—for chastisting their daughters. A little chastisement, to be sure, but one that was probably humiliating enough to the grown women who sometimes had to take it.

TO MAKE YOU THIN

Exercise strenuous enough to take off superfluous pounds seems to most women more difficult than a diet spare enough to turn the trick. In other words, to starve a little is lest difficult than to indulge in exercise till it hurts. Besides, it takes a lot of most sorts of exercise to counteract the effect of just one more slice of bread a day! Still there are some reducing experts who recommend special diet plus exercise. Quite the latest sort of reducing exercise is hoop rolling. Really it is great fun. To be sure, you might hesitate about rolling a hoop along the sidewalk or roadway of your town, but you can easily practice a half hour or so a day under cover of some gymnasium.

A NEW KIND OF PUDDING
Lemon Tapioca Sponge

One-half cup quick-cooking tap, one cup sugar, two cups water, juice two lemons, two egg whites. Put tapioca, sugar and water into double boiler and cook, stirring often until clear. Add lemon juice and cook three minutes. When cool and beginning to thicken add the stiffly-beaten egg whites, and beat well. Serve with boiled custard or heavy cream.

MAURETANIA MAKES 32.5 MILES AN HOUR

Record Across Atlantic Will Be Unchallenged For Many Years To Come

Commenting on the record-breaking voyage of the Cunard liner Mauretania, "The Engineer" makes the following pertinent observations on the question of high speeds at sea from the economic standpoint:

The news that the Mauretania, on her latest homeward passage, covered 3,198 miles between Amborse lightship and Cherbourg at an average speed of 26¼ knots, means that the liner maintained throughout the voyage a speed of more than 30 miles an hour.

SEVENTEEN YEARS SERVICE

It should not be overlooked that this wonderful voyage was made by a ship which is now in her seventeenth year. Except that her boilers have been converted for oil fuel and her turbines partly re-bladed, the Mauretania remains unaltered,

Since her completion she has been almost constantly in service, and probably has a greater mileage to her credit than any other vessel afloat; yet today, when she is already nearing the end of that twenty-year period of "useful life" which is assigned to the average pasenger liner, we find her easily surpassing the highest speed she made on her earliest voyage.

We can recall no finer example of the British genius for shipbuilding and marine engineering. During the last five hours of the passage to Cherbourg her speed average

Salamanders Are Subject Of Talk By Mr. Sowerby

Lecture At Royal Asiatic Museum With Li[ve] Examples

"Chinese Salamanders and their Relations" was the subject of an unusually interesting lecture given by Mr. Arthur de C. Sowerby, the noted local scientist, in the Royal Asiatic Museum hall yesterday. Several live giant Salamanders were used to illustrate the talk.

Mr. Sowerby's opening remarks were of a jocular and explanatory nature, dealing with the recent appearance of salamanders in Shanghai and referring to the prolific newspaper correspondence on the subject.

In defining amphibia, the class to which salamanders belong, Mr. Sowerby said that the word is generally taken to mean a cold-blooded vertebrate which has two distinct stages in its life-history, and spends part of its life as a purely aquatic animal breathing by means of gills and part as a land animal breathing by means of a lung.

AMPHIBIAN CLASS

"The chief difference between amphibians and fish lies in the formation of the limbs, these being the regular five-toed (pentadactyle) limbs of most terrestrial vertebrates in the amphibian, and many-rayed fins in the fish. Amphibians differ from reptiles in having the aquatic larval stage, and also in the complete absence of scales or horny plates of any kind.

"Amphibians fall naturally between the fishes on the one hand and reptiles on the other, but this does not necessarily mean that they represent a stage in the evolution of the reptile from the fish. It is more likely that reptiles, amphibians and modern fishes all spring from a common generalised and very primitive ancestor that inhabited the seas in some pre-Carboniferous period of the earth's history.

GEOLOGICAL RECORDS

"Geological records show that amphibians were well established in the Carboniferous age, when they existed in great variety in profusion, some attaining a very large size. At this period they were probably the chief inhabitants of the great swamp-forests, which appear to have offered just the right environment for the development of the mode of life and physical form of the typical amphibian. The Carboniferous age marked the zenith of amphibian development, and was characterised by the numerous very large aquatic and terrestial forms.

The amphibians are divided into two main groups:

1. The Urodela, or Amphibians with tails in the adult stage, e. g. Salamanders, newts, etc.;
2. The Anura, or amphibians in which the tail disappears in the adult, e. g. Frogs and Toads.
3. The Apoda, or limbless, worm-like forms.

LIFE HISTORY

"The life history of the typical amphibian is divisible into three stages.

1. The Egg, generally laid in water. Exceptions to this are: Rhacophorus, or Flying Frog, in which the eggs are laid in a mass of froth suspended from the limb of some tree overhanging water. When the young hatch they drop into the water and carry on the normal existence. The other exception is Pipa, or Surinam Water-Toad, in which the eggs are deposited in receptacles with lids in the flesh of the mother's back.

"An interesting case is that of the Mid-wife frog, in which the male commandeers the strings of eggs as the female lays them, and winding them about his legs cares for them till the tadpoles hatch out.

"In the worm-like amphibian of Ceylon, known as Ichthyophus glutinosus, the female makes an underground chamber, where she lays her eggs, subsequently coiling round them to protect them. The female of a certain South-American species of Tree-frog (Nototrema) carries the eggs in a sack on the back.

TADPOLE STAGE

2. Tadpole: The majority of amphibians go through an aquatic larval stage when they are known as Tadpoles. At this time they are more or less fish-shaped, having a long tail with vertical fins, and external gills. In due course limbs appear, the gills disappear into fill slits on the side of the head, and in the case of frogs and toads the tail is absorbed. When the gill slits close and lungs have developed the amphibian leaves the water. Some forms, however, never leave the water. Such are the eel-like Amphiuma of America which has minute three-toed legs; the Proteus found only in subterranean springs in Europe and America, having a long, whitish body and no eyes; and the Siren Salamander of North America, which only has two front legs. In all these, external gills persist throughout life.

"In the remarkable Mexican form called the Axniotl or Tiger Salamander, the larval stage persists as long as there is plenty of water. If the pond or stream in which the animal lives begins to dry up, the tadpole at once begins to metamorphose into an adult, gill-less, air-breathing, terrestrial form. The adult stage has also been produced by feeding the Tadpole with thyroid extract.

ADULT STAGE

"The adult amphibian generally live on land, repairing to water only for spawning purposes. Some, however, such as the Giant Salamander of China and Japan, live in water all their lives. Some peculiar worm-like forms live underground. Other forms, such as the Siren, Amphiuma and Proteus live in a semi-adult form all their lives in water.

CHINESE AMPHIBIANS

"The Amphibians of China are fairly well known. Some 40 or 50 species have been described up to date, but it is probable that there are many more to be discovered.

"A remarkable fact is that newts and their kin are found in China and not elsewhere in Asia south of the desert belt. Not found in Africa.

"The Giant Salamander is a Japanese and Chinese form, described by Pere David, the famous French missionary-naturalist, who secured a specimen in South Shensi. Said to be the same as the Japanese form.

"Earliest record of the type of Giant Salamander known as Megalobatrachius sligoi is from the Miocene strata of Switzerland, and was described by the finder as a fossil man.

"Several kinds of smaller salamanders and newts are to be found in China, as well as many kinds of frogs and toads. The true frogs are the Giant frogs of S. E. China, the Tiger frog of South China, the Edible frog of All China, Common frog in Manchuria, and Wood frogs in various parts of the country. The commonest frog, found all over China, is named Rana.

FLYING FROGS

"There are several forms of flying frogs characterised by the tips of their fingers and toes. There are also the Giant Tree Frog of South China and the Small Tree Frogs of South China.

"The Tree Toads are somewhat like the Flying Frogs, but smaller. They have great vocal powers and are good climbers.

"The Pigmy Tree Toads are known as Microhyla because of their affinities with the Tree-toads and their minute size. (A new species was recently named after Mr. Sowerby, who discovered it in Fukien).

"The Fire-bellied Toads are small toads with brilliant flame colored, marbled bellies. They have peculiar habits when frightened. There are found in Chefoo and Manchuria.

"The True Toads are: The Common Asiatic Toad (Bufor Asiatious); Radde's Toad (B. raddei) from Mongolia and North China, a beautifully marked form; and the Pencilled Toad (B. melanosticta) from South China."

New Foreign Shoe Shop On Nanking Road

Shanghai residents to whom the problem of being well-shod is omnipresent, due to the difficulty of reconciling style, confort and price, will relish the news that a new retail shoe is to be open at 24-B Nanking Road on Monday, December 1, under the name of "The Lingel Shoe Store."

The shop will sell at retail the products of a combine of five big European shoe factories known as the Lingel Shoe Manufacturing Association. The products are well-known on the Continent and enjoy a reputation for good workmanship, style, durability, fit and moderate price. Both men's and women's shoes will be carried in many different styles.

The Lingel shoe has a special trade-mark known as "the tack near the heel," and the shoes made by the Association are easily recognised by a small silver tack placed in the curve under the instep, near the heel of the shoe.

Another interesting feature of these shoes is that the exceptionally fine, high-grade shoes for women—evening and dancing slippers and the like—are made by a special process known as "Ago," in which the shoe is not stitched to the sole but fastened on with a new patent composition which gives the shoe a trimmer, softer line and renders it more durable.

The shoes will retail at from $7 to $16 a pair. The wholesale business will be in the hands of Messrs. Steiner and Co., 19 Kiukiang Road.
